Utah

Our family was introduced to the Ian Cunningham Intervention Services for transport of our son with mental health issues. We were extremely pleased with the safe transport, ease of getting it set up and reasonable cost. We especially appreciated the multiple updates during the travel time. Overall it was conveyed that our son was very important and more than just a "cargo" transport. We feel he was treated appropriately with utmost respect as they enjoyed talking with him, getting to know him, and following up after several months even to see how he was doing. It was like there was a connection made between our son and us as parents that made us all feel they cared and we were in good hands. We would highly recommend this service.
